

Bachelor Pads

Going back to their place? You'll be impressed

"There's a sense of luxury. It's all about building a sexy spirit"

---

sitting area

"I'm obsessed with mid-century design," says Pomeranc, who worked with a designer to choose the sleek furnishings.

JASON POMERANC

Marilyn Monroe suite, Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel, L.A.

AGE: 34 WHEN HE'S NOT AT HOME: A lawyer turned real-estate mogul, he oversees the renovations and operations of the six hotels he owns with his brothers and other partners.

A bicoastal art buff, Pomeranc splits his time between a downtown Manhattan loft and Marilyn Monroe's former digs at the Roosevelt, which he's rehabbing into a Hollywood hot spot.

The M.M. connection: In the '50s, Monroe lived in the 950-sq.-ft. one-bedroom suite as a struggling actress for two years and again briefly with husband Joe DiMaggio. "There's a sense of both tragedy and drama about this room," Pomeranc says. "You can feel her beauty and vulnerability as well as her recklessness."

Amenities include: A flat-screen TV, vintage furniture and a stainless steel kitchen, but hey, there's always room service.

the bedroom

The sleeping alcove features walls padded in white leather and Bert Stern's iconic 1962 photo of the suite's former occupant, Marilyn Monroe.

the living room

Above the couch (draped with a fox throw) is Mick Rock's portrait of a young boy in Liverpool, from Pomeranc's extensive art collection.